❖ Election Commission of India, Articles, Functions, Powers, Provisions

> Election Commission of India

> Election Commission of India (ECI)

The Election Commission of India is a permanent and independent body established by the Indian Constitution to ensure free and fair elections in the country. The commission is in charge of holding India's Lok Sabha elections. This article will thus discuss the Election Commission of India, Article 324 (relating to the Election Commission's independence and impartiality,) its powers and responsibilities, and more.

> What is the Election Commission of India (ECI)?

The administration of the Union and State election procedures in India is the purview of the Election Commission of India, an independent constitutional body. The organisation oversees elections for the President and Vice President of India as well as the Lok Sabha, Rajya Sabha, and State Legislative Assemblies.

> Election Commission of India Provisions

The Indian Constitution's Part XV addresses and deals with elections and creates a commission to handle these issues. On January 25, 1950, the Election Commission was constituted in conformity with the Constitution. The constitution's Articles 324 to 329 deal with the commission's and the member's authority, function, tenure, eligibility, etc.
